

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

KXRW.FM to Host 2026 Northwest Book & Media Expo at Clark College

Expanded event brings together authors, podcasters, and media creators from across the Northwest

Vancouver, WA — October 2025 — The Northwest Book & Media Expo will return on Saturday, June 27, 2026, to a new, larger venue at Clark College, offering more space, better parking, and greater accessibility for authors and attendees.

Formerly known as the Northwest Book Fair, the newly expanded Expo is sponsored by KXRW.FM, Vancouver's community radio station, and now welcomes not only book authors but also local print media, podcasters, YouTubers, filmmakers, and digital media creators.

"We're thrilled to grow this event into something that celebrates every kind of storyteller," said Patty Grasher, event coordinator and host of Northwest Book Talk on KXRW.FM. "So many storytellers today work in a variety of mediums, including podcasts or video channels. This is a chance to showcase how stories are being shared in new ways across our region."

The 2026 Expo will feature more than 70 print and media booths, workshops, and live radio interviews. A printed program and online directory will highlight all participants and sponsors. Early-bird registration opened October 20, 2025, at $75 per table, with full registration later at $125.

The Expo aims to draw over 3,000 visitors to Clark College's campus — located just minutes from downtown Vancouver — for a full day celebrating books, media, and community connection.

Sponsorship opportunities are available for local businesses and organizations that want to support literacy, creativity, and community media in Southwest Washington.

For registration details, sponsorship information, or press inquiries, visit NorthwestBookExpo.com or contact:

Patty Grasher

Event Coordinator, Northwest Book & Media Expo

pat@northwestbooktalk.com

360-949-0829 (call or text)

About the Northwest Book & Media Expo

Founded in 2022 as the Northwest Book Fair, the Expo celebrates storytelling in all forms — from books and radio to digital and visual media. Sponsored by KXRW.FM 99.9, Vancouver's community radio station, the event connects authors, readers, and media creators across the Pacific Northwest through exhibits, workshops, and live programming.